Waldorf settlement sought by Yard

20p)

By Stewart Tendler Crime Reporter

Scotland Yard is negotiating to pay Mr Steven Waldorf damages in an out of court settlement for the injuries he received in a police operation last January, a senior Scotland yard officer said yesterday.

Commissioner Assistant Geoffrey Dear, speaking after the acquittal this week of two detectives on charges involving the shooting of Mr Waldorf, said that a settlement of the damages was "expected quite soon". Discussions have been held between legal advisers for the police and Mr Waldorf but a final figure has yet to be agreed.

During the trial at the Central Criminal Court, Mr Waldorf said he had not been told by doctors of any permanent disahility after an attack during which he was hit by five bullets and struck across the head.

The court was told be had been critically ill at one point and one injury "was potentially lethal".

There has been speculation that the claim may be as high as £1m. but Scotland Yard would not comment on figures yester-day and Mr Waldort's legal adviser was not available for

Mr Dear disclosed the possibility of a settlement while speaking on BBC radio yester-day as several Labour MPs made calls for a public inquiry into the circumstances of the shooting.

They stormed the house and freed Mr Bishop and Miss Jacqueline Creft, who had The Police Federation has promised its members that the present guidelines for the police use of guns would be examined and discussed with the Home Office.

Mr Dear, the head of personnel and training at Scotland Yard, said the shooting, after Mr Waldorf was mistaken for David Martin who was at the time a dangerous fugitive, had sent "a shock wave through the police service".

He said the reaction of policemen to the incident and the case was not "a shoot first, ask questions later policy. It has so shocked the police they are much less likely to open fire in similar circumstances".

Mr Dear added that it was unlikely there was anything in the police rules on fircarms which needed changing but "it is much a question o selection and training".

But one of the easons Labour won only by the narrowest of margins was that during those 13 years it had lost, in one way or another, spost of its senior figures who had served in the Cahinet.

So it was a very inexperi-enced team that Mr Wilson led beck into power. That was a handicap in the campaign and a considerable weakness for the new Government. It is a problem that is now enevitably presented to Labour once again. Indeed, in one sense the difficulty is all the greater this time because Mr Neil Kinnock has never served in any

The most viable scheme is thought to be the twin-bore rail tunnel, as promoted by Tarmae and Wimpey through Channel Tunnel Developments. That would be similar to the scheme cancelled in 1974, in that it would provide both for through train traffic, and for road vehicles carried on shuttle trains.

Its smaller scale makes it easier to finance than the Euroroute scheme backed by Mr Ian McGregor which, with its combined bridge and tunnel solution would take road vehicles as well as trains, but could cost twice as much.

closure of the company's print-ing works and had halted the newpaper's production. The statement from Mr David Dimbleby, chairman and managing director of Dimbleby and Sons, claims that although the NGA was aware of the damage being caused during the strike, which centred on the proposed redundancy of three printing workers, it ignored urgent requests for talks aimed at resolving the issue.

The company said it first approached the NGA about the redundancies last February and subsequently reduced them to two in an attempt to compromise. "For over twelve months", the statement says "we had been employing three printers on full pay who only had work to do on one day a week. It was quickly apparent that the NGA had no intention of allowing us to make any retlundancies.

By early August, NGA officials had not made contact, it says, "despite our asking for urgent meetings for six weeks". The company told its NGA members that two redundancies and cais in unworked overtime were urgently needed. There was still no response from NGA officials. NGA members imposed an overtime ban. After two weeks, the company issued the two redundancy notices.

"Before these fell due on August 24, the machine minders went on strike.

'It is most improbable Mr Healey would have taken this step without some assurance that he will be reappointed as Shadow Foreign Secretary, Many people will welcome this as evidence that Labour will Tintin and his dog Snowy (right) and Asterix the Gaul, pursue a policy of international responsibility. But Mr Healey's continued presence in the Shadow Cabinet will make it all the more iskely that Mr Peter Shore will be moved from the Shadow chancellorship. Now that he is deputy leader. Mr Hattersley could harly be moved from the post of Shadow Home Secretary unless he were to become Shadow Foreign Secretary or Chancellor. Yet it would not be much of an advertisement for the fresh approach if Mr Kinnock were to leave the big three positions in his Shadow-Cabinet unchanged.

Exchange of jobs likely

So it seems probable either that there will be a straight exchange of jobs between Mr Hattersley and Mr Shore or that somebody like Mr Gerald Kaufman will be given one of these posts. Several his colleagues mention his name as a possible Shadow Chancellor: his icisive mind and caustic tongue are much admired, and sometimes feared.

It will, however, be a great pity if Mr Shore is left with a minor post in the reshuffle. He suffered a humiliating defeat in the leadership contest, but he fought a more consistently furthright campaign than any of the other candidates. He won much public respect in the process, and he is the kind of politician with the national interest at heart whom Labour needs in senior positions if it is to be convincing to a wider public. The test for Mr Kinnock will be whether he constructs his team to appeal to that wider public, or simply to the party.

James King, aged 27, of King's Cross Road, Dundee, was cleared by the High Court in Dundee yesterday of assault with intent to rape. His alleged victim, aged 22, was detained in custody after being convicted of contempt of court.

On Wednesday the alleged victim refused to say anything because she and King were friends.

The presiding judge, Lord Wylie, defered sentence until November 3 at the High Court in Edinburgh, describing it as "a most unusual case". The woman was detained in custody for social reports.

British pupils 'lag in maths' By Nick Wood

British children of below average ability trail a full two years behind their West German conterparts in mathematical attainment, according to a detailed new comparison of education standards in the two countries.

The study shows that examination results achieved by children in the bottom half of the ability range are extremely poor compared with those obtained in the West German hauptschule, equivalent to the old British secondary modern school. Two of three school-leavers in England and Wales failed to get at least a Certificate of Secondary Education grade five in a core of three subjects by English, mathematics and cience - but nine ont of ten West Germans were awarded their leaving certificates, for which they had to pass nine out of ten subjects.

The findings come from a study by Professor Sig Prais and Dr Karin Wagner, and are contained in a pre-publication discussion document issued by the National Institute of Social and Economic Research.

LSE rejects | Embryo 'doing well' after idea to buy racehorse By Richard Evans

Faced with spending a £10,000 windfall on a raceborse or a nursery, the students of the London School of Economics settled yesterday for a tra-ditional British compromise, and rejected both ideas.

The refund from the Depart-ment of Health and Social Security will remain invested in Charter Trust and earn the students' union £1,100 a year. At the best-attended student meeting for years, where paper darts rained down on speakers, voting tended to follow partypolitical lines. The left vociferously supported giving the cash towards nursery facilities, while the right favoured indulgence on the turf. In the end neither achieved the asked to include in their wills necessary two-thirds majority destination of embryos in case and a decidedly boisternus "silent majority" won the day.

During an intense propa-ganda battle the LSE Labour group issued a pamphlet which said that the raceborse plan was, at best, a pathetic public-school wheeze and, at worst, a piece of callous manoeuvering by Tories. The right, spearled elements within Beaver, students' newspaper, published a leaflet, Vote for the Horse, which reminded students of their expensive mistake last year when they rejected a plan to disaffiliate from the National Union of Students and to spend he money on a horse.

The horse named Caballo, won two races, trebled in value, and would have made a £10,000 profit

Mr Martin Graham, who was behind both schemes suggested rectiffing the mistake buying Enbyar Dan, a Newmarket-trained novice hurdler with "bags of potential". His idea failed to win a simple majority.

President João Figueriredo of Brazil has issued a new wages decree after Congress threw out a previous one to limit pay

Just before the Congress voted he invoked emergency powers in the capital to curt protest

The vote went-260-3 against the Bill, which would have limited all rises to 80 per cent of the official cost-of-living index.

Scores of people in a country where inflation is running at anything between 120 and 200 per cent, had been camping ont in protest for days.

The Bill was a crucial part of programme agreed with the nternational Monetary Fund to help to rescue Brazil from its 160bn foreign debt on which it owes about £1.3bn alone in overdue interest payments.

The President, faced with Congress's refusal to ratify the Bill, immediately issued his new decree which goes some way to meet opposition demands from rebels within the government party (the PDS Social Democrats Party) and the opposition PMDB Brazilian Democratics Party and the other small

CND expects 200,000 on march

By a Staff Reporter

The Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament is expecting more than 200,000 supporters in central London on Saturday to launch the final stage of its struggle to keep cruise missiles out of Britain.

The protesters, who will arrive in mare than 400 chartered coaches and 40 special trains, will take part in two marches from the Victoria. Embankment to Hyde Park, accompanied by music and street entertainers.

The day-long protest will culminate in a rally in the park, where speakers will include such stalwarts of the peace movement as Mr E. P. Thomson, the historian, Mgr Bruce Kent, general secretary of CND, and Bishop Trevor Huddleston, president of the National Peace Council, as well as Mr Neil Kinnock, leader of the Labour Party, and Mr Paddy Ashdown, the Liberal MP for Yeovil.

Mgr Kent has said that the scale of the demonstration will Saturday's marches and rally will have more international flavour than earlier CND make it clear to the Governprotests. Europe prunes budget by £283m

From Los Murray

"good manag Tough measures are now being foi-lowed by the European Commission to save as much as E283m from this year's EEC budget. In tandem with a series of decisions now likely to be aken by the European Parlia ment, they increase the pressure on governments to agree to important reforms to Com-munity financing by the end of

There was no question when Wednesday evening to decide what to do about the cash flow crisis that every one of the 14 members was acutely aware of the urgent need to do something to make sure the Community hudget would last out the year. In the end it was decided to exploit the crisis by making provision to save twice as much as might be needed.

The main measure approved was, as expected, the continuation of the freeze on the payment of some premiums, storage and export refunds, which had first been brought in on Tuesday of last week. This can be lifted if finances improve radically, hnt by the end of the year it could mean savings of as much as £121m from this year's budget. In all events the money would still have to be paid to traders, but only out of next year's budget. In addition to this there is likely to be the saving of £50m, more than 80 per cent of which would go to Britain, of the ewe premium, which is normally paid in early December. This is now likely to be paid in January, hut the Commission intends to propose ending the present system of advance payment in favour of the cheaper method and asking for it to be paid at the end of the season in arrears.

All the other measures being introduced can be extended Los Angeles - A few days indefinitely and all represent real savings which the Community can make. The largest part of these is the £82m being pruned by dint of a different method of accouning losses on sales intervention - a measure which has been under study for some months

There could also be permanent savings made by the decision to reduce the interest paid to member states to finance intervention stocks from 9 per cent to 8 per cent. This will save £2.5m this year and could save as much as £22m in a full year.

The other idea being introduced will reduce the amount of skimmed milk powder being sold off to be mixed into pig and poultry feed. This is a very

The comeback of Mickey Mouse after more than thirty years' absence from the screen is an event of moment to mark the Disney diamond jubilee. In 1939 Lewis Jacobs, in his classic Rise of the American Film, called Mickey "the most universal movie idol besides Chaplin that has captivated through laughter the bearts of the world". Of Mickey's creator Jacobs could then write: "Disney has made the animated cartooo perhaps the finest expression of motion picture art in contemporary America ... He has done more with the film medium since it has added sound and colour than any other director, creating a form that is of great and vital consequence not only for what it is but for what it portends.

Since Jacobs wrote, time and fashion have eclipsed or at least obscured the achievement and the regard which were Disney's at the time of the Second World War, However tastes may change, though, the excellence of Disney animation can never be in donbt. The Jungle Book (which is reissued in the programme with Mickey's Christmas Carol) is still unsurpassed for the sheer craft quality of the character animation. Nor have Mickey's fame and popularity diminished in the years since he left the screen in 1952. He was born in 1928, but his personality -naive, gallant, incorrigibly optimistic belongs supremely to the New Deal era. He could easily have played one of the Capra heroes - Mr Deeds, or the Mr Smith who went to Washington. As it was, in his time and through 118 cartoons, he tried his hand at a good many of the occupations of the ordinary American, Mickey was taxidriver, farmer, deck-hand, teamster, trapper, tailor, detective, magician, jockey, boxer, skater, scientist, Hageland, jockey, boxer, skater, scientist. National Lampoon's Vacation, directed hy Harold Ramis from a screenplay by John Hughes, marks a happy graduation from foregoing N.L. forays in the field of institutional educatioo. It is a darkly comic road film, with an average Chicago family (Chevy Chase, Beverley d'Angelo and, as their children, Anthooy Michael Hall and Dana Barron) crossing the country to visit a Californian fun park. Their misfortunes recall those which W. C. Fields encountered oo a similar safari in It's a Gift. It is low comedy, but appealing in its acerbity.

Class is definitely lower - a high school comedy with a sour twist. There is the usual frantic pressure on the firstyear student to lose his virginity: the trouble is that he succeeds with his room-mate's mother. Oedipus is not in it. but none of the psychological implications is ever pursued; 'the end suggests the ooly solution is for the boys to take to each other's arms. The director was Lewis John Carlino, and it is not Jacqueline Bisset's fault if she does not make sense of her role. So few people now can still remember Buildog Drummond that a spoof of the character looks doomed from the start - even if it were funnier than Dick Clement's Bullshot. The script was written by the three leading players, Alan Shearman, Diz White and Ron House, and stretches an idea that would have made a four-minute sketch in a university revue to a feature-length collection of elaborately unfunny

Hammersmith Odeon

William "Smokey" Robinsoo is oot content merely to stand back and recite perfect versions of the many elassic songs which have made him, for more than 20 years, the most artful singer in popular music. Iostead he chooses to regenerate and refine the methods he learnt as a kid facing the famously responsive audiences io the black theatres of the Sixties; and thereio lies the reason for the compara-tively unsatisfying nature of the coocerts he gives when, infrequently, he comes to Britain. Robinsoo's standing as an enormously successful and influential singer and composer makes him a somewhat distant hero to British audiences, who have never thrown off their restraint and are happy merely to admire him. Those present on Wednesday evening were too inhibited to provide the participarioo which would have closed the circle and given the event the sense of occasion it demaoded. Yet, for all the coduring brilliaoce of his recordings, it is only in coocert that Robinsoo's true depth is revealed: an entire dimension is added to the air of moonstruck ectasy, to the astonishingly pure falsetto and to the infinitely flexible decoration of his phrasing. Leading a band of 13 who were consistently faithful to the music's spirit. he was on this occasion. as on others, practically without flaw. His solicitation of requests brought many of the evening's indelible moments: "My Girl", "You've Really Got a Hold on Me", stunniog impromptu a cappella accounts of "Who's Gonna Take the Blame" and Gonna Take the Blame" and "Holly", a completely entranced reading of the weightless ballad "Ooo Bahy Baby", "More Love", "Shop Arouod", "Mickey's Mookey" and "The Love 1 Saw in You Was Just a Mirage" were lifted from the archives and given an affectionatc polish. His charming tribute to the guitarist Marvin Tarplin, whose liquid chords have partnered Robinson's voice since the beginning, also displayed a proper sense of historical values, If "Blame it on Love", his current American hit, demonstrated that he is not, nowadays, infallible when it comes to choosing material from external sources, elsewhere just about every note he sang conveyed behind its sweetness the "heartache camouflaged", the clown's tears, the out-of-place smile, the cmotional deception which is

Why the PLO fell apart in Beirut Miles Kington

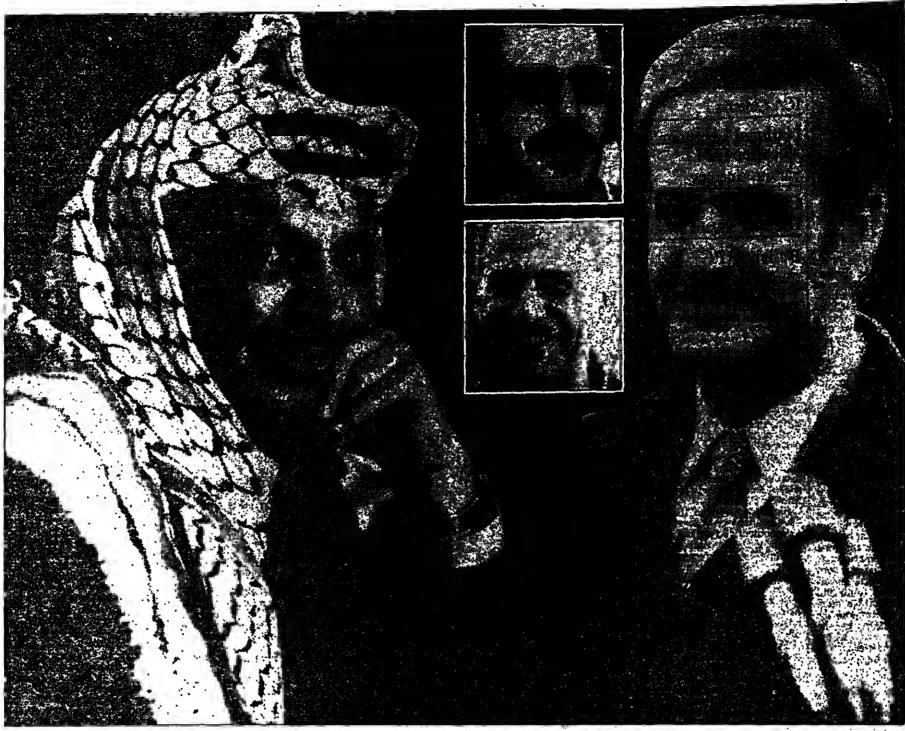

The Palestine Liberation Organization grew into the world's best known guerrilla army under the leadership of Yassir Arafat. Then, quite suddenly it disintegrated. What caused its downfall?

By Robert Fisk

At mid-morning on Palm Sunday, 1978 Mahmoud Labadi, Yassir Arafat's bespectacled and unbane press spokesman, was driving down the main coastal highway south of Sidon. It was a bad day for the Palestinians. Israel had just sent 20,000 troops into Lebanon to attack the Palestine Liberation Organization, and Israeli jets were bombing and strafing the main road. A quarter of a million civilian refugees were walking or driving broken vehicles up the highway towards the dubious safety of Beirut. But what troubled Labadi - who three times had to take cover in the orchards beside the road as marauding jets flew overhead - was the large number of Palestinian guerrilla fighters who were also heading north. Gunmen were crowded on pick-up trucks while Fatah guerrillas holding Kalashnikov assault rifles were also ficeing the battle zone, sometimes pushing the refugees off the road in their desperation to escape.

Labadi was appalled. He drove at once back to Sidon and burst into the PLO's operations headquarters in the city suburbs where he found Yassir Arafat, for 13 years the supreme Palestinian military commander, surrounded by his most senior officers. The colonels and lieutenants whom Arafat had promoted over the years, Labadi remembers, all had "long, unshaven faces". Among them was Colonol Haj Ismael, the commander of southern Lebanon who had himself fled the battle.

Several of those present recall what happened next. Arafat, who still used his old code-name of Abu Amar, took one look at Labadi's face and asked: "What's wrong, Mahmoud, what's wrong?" And Labadi replied slowly: "Our people are running away, Abu Amar." So Arafat stood up, put his Amar." peaked military forage cap on his head and - ignoring the protestations of Haj Ismael - left his bunker and climbed into Labadi's car. Followed by his retinue of complaining colonels, he drove to an abandoned petrol station just south of the Zahrani oil refinery on the main highway where he ordered four Fatah guerrillas to stand across we were corrupt. So they left Fatah." the road and force any Palestinian angry at me because I told Arafat the truth. They were loyal but they were cowards." Those Palestinians who remain loyal him both look back to this incident as an important moment in the history of the Fatah movement, crystallizing the weakness inherent in the PLO long before last year's Israeli siege of West Beirut. How could a man of such obvious charisma as Arafat have surrounded himself with such incompetent officers? How did they ever achieve their positions? In Arafat's encircled stronghold of Tripoli today, the question is not put so bluntly. But turned against him - who have arguably betrayed him - look back for with PLO funds. even further for the seeds of the mutiny that has now torn apart the world's best known guerrilla army.

course, after the PLO was driven out of Jordan by King Husain's army in September, 1970. As one of the mutineer officers in Damascus puts it: "We had an organization in Amman but we were not capable of holding it together. We could not restrain the Palestinian street gangs. People got rich. We harmed our relationship with the Jordanian government and with the Jordanian people. The PLO never said so at the time but we lost thousands of our members when we came to Lebanon - young men with university degrees, people we needed, who said that we could not fight, that The issue of corruption was an fighters who were running away to turn important one once the Palestinians back to the battlefield. The PLO's account was never maintained at less than a million US to Arafat and those who have forsaken dollars but further funds were spread around at least ten other accounts, sometimes in the names of finance committee members - men like Abu Usama, Abu Ala and Fouad Shoubaki - who in turn ploughed the money into investments for Fatah. In this way, the PLO bought a series of huge farms in Syria, Sudan, Ethiopia, Somalia and Guinea. Incredibly, it also bought major shareholdings in several shipping companies operating out of Greece and Cyprus. Moussa Arafat, in Damascus, the men who have Yassir Arafat's own cousin, became the owner of a farm near Damascus, paid Yassir Arafat's reaction to allegations of corruption is fierce. take over the PLO's guerrilla move-ment, thus becoming the undisputed vanguard of the Palestinian revolution. A year earlier, Abu Saleh had been sent to Damascus by Arafat on a goodwill visit. It had been an attempt to move Aba Saleh out of Beirut but it backfired because the Syrians swiftly realized how disenchanted Abu, Saleh had become with the PLO leadership. He and President Assad had a secret six-hour meeting. And when Abu Salch returned to Damascus in the autumn of last year, Colonel Ahmed Diab, the head of Syrian national security, offered him a diplomatic passport. Abu Saleh then arranged for Abu Khaled El-Amla, a Fatah student representative expelled by Arafat, to meet Diab. The mutiny was born.

New Orleans

New Orleans When people out here learn I am British, they sometimes nutige me and say they hear that British politics is brightening up these days. I would like to think this meant that the wit and wisdom of Neil Kinnock is infiltrating the American public awareness. But of course they mean what I fear they mean, the Cecil Parkinson affair – that typically British husiness in which everyone means to business in which everyone seems to have tried to do everything for the best and ended up making a hash of it, and which is the only piece of British news reported here at all.

The most serious mistake made in th whole sorry story was the newspapers' decision to give it coverage, and that is why I left Britain a week ago, determined to stay in earle until it was all over.

arrived in Lousiana to find the local I arrived in Lousiana to find the local politicians doing what politicians should really be doing: attempting to justify their redection. At the top, they are looking for a new governor; at the bottom, they are looking for new dog-catchers and assistant deputy postmen, and by American law all these posts and everything in between are redectable. When the inhabitants vote tomorrow they will have to fill in a form as long as an income-tax return, but at least they an income-tax return, but at least they will then be able to get rid of all the posters which have festooned this fair state almost as badly as fringe posters swamp Edinburgh at Festival time, and you can't get worse than that.

you can tget weese has had had. Basically, these posters yield very little information about the candidate. They give the voters their surname, their best passport photograph, one of their nicknames (usually Bud) and the post they hope to be voted into. Political thought is limited to a slogan reading either "Stand by your man" or "Time for either "Stand by your man" or "Time for a change". After a while I found myself hoping for a variant, such as maybe: "Hi! I'm Cecil Parkinson! I'm new over here but very experienced!"

The battle to be governor is, for once, extremely interesting, especially as both candidates have been governors before. Ex-governor Edwards, a Democrat, was in office for two terms (eight years) and became very popular, having the kind of expansive personality that voters down here like and which tends to override any runours of inefficiency or even corruption. Not being able to run for a third consecutive term he withdrew gracefully, but the ensuing scramble for his safe seat was so ungraceful and so clearly fixed. that most of the Democrats did something unheard of they ralled behind the Republican candidate, Treen, who became the first Republican governor since the Civil War.

Treen has been sober and industrious. He has also, unfortunately, presided over a collapse in the local oil industry so that state finances, through no pa

Ahmed Abdul Rahman, the man who took over Labadi's job as Arafat's spokesman last year, insists that the PLO's funds were invested under private names because Arab states do not allow organizations like the PLO to own property. He rejects - as does Arafat - the claim by the mutineers that there are 20 millionaires among the leaders of Fatah, all of them close to Arafat himself. Nevertheless, Arafat's hold on power within the guerrilla movement is an intensely personal one. He is himself leader of Fatah's revolutionary council. His cousin Haj Mutlak is a member. So is his nephew - his sister's son - Nasser Kudwa, and so too is his brother Fathi who was brought onto the council last year.

Moussa Arafat is also on the revolutionary council. Even though one of Arafat's relatives holds an elected post the appointment of the other three was bound to lead to allegations of nepotism. example, the PLO commander in southern Lebanon was a middle-aged Fatah officer called Abu Moussa, an argumentative but generally efficient guerrilla fighter who was sacked by Arafat in favour of Haj Ismael, the man who was to fice his post in 1978. Abu Moussa was put out to grass for four years as a member of the PLO's Beirut "operations room", a largely impotent talking shop for retired Palestinian tacticians which had no real power within the guerrilla move-

Another officer frozen out by Arafat was Nimr Saleh, code-named Abu Saleh, who was a member of Fatah's central committee and at one time on the general command of Fatah's Assifa (storm) guerrillas, an unimaginative and slightly pompous man who none the less regularly criticized the PLO's unpreparedness for war.

But Arafat's own appointments quickly proved disastrous. Labadi likes to set the scene for what followed The Palestinian movement at that time was like an Oxford student who never did any work," he says. "Instead of studying, he chased girls and got drunk. He never prepared for his examination. He would boast - just like Arafat boasted that he would 'defy Begin to invade' - but when the day of the examinations came in June, 1982, he failed the examination. He got only 30 per cent. Against the Israelis, that's not bad, but it's not good enough. We held out in Beirut for 90 days, but that's not enough."

The Israelis quickly captured Tyre and Sidon. Haj Ismael again left his post. Arafat's deputy Khalil Wazzir - a thoughtful and brave man who is the only Arafat loyalist still respected by the mutineers - said later that Haj Ismael had been cut off from his men while leading an attack on an Israeli tank unit on a hill cast of Sidon. But most Fatah officers quickly came to the conclusion that Haj Ismael was guilty of cowardice.

Surrounded in Beirut, the guerrillas savagely argued among themselves. Abu Saleh, his own home in the Fakhani district destroyed in an air attack, complained more openly about Arafat's colleagues.

Arafat allegedly turned on Labadi one evening, erasperated by Labadi's constant harping on the need to stay in Beirut. "Never mind what I tell the foreign press about staying here," he said. "We have got to go."

In late September, after the PLO had left, Arafat sat down in Damascus and watched an uncut American television video showing the corpses in Sabra and Chatila. Those who know him well say that he realized then how he had negotiated with the wrong people for the wrong guarantees. It was too bate. The Syrians had already decided to Arafat knew what was going on in Damascus but his judgment appeared to desert him. Far away in Tunis, he decided that the remaining guerrillas in northern Lebanon needed a commander and appointed, of all people, Haj Ismael. There was uproar within Fatah, not least among colleagues of Abu Moussa, who was asked to accept an inferior position. Arafat then accused Abu Moussa of running away from a battle at Jezzine in 1982, a charge that appears to be untrue.

Abu Moussa was already consorting with the Syrians. He held a series of meetings in Damascus with Colonel Ali Duba, the head of Syrian army intelligence, and with Colonel Razi Kanzan, the head of Syria's military intelligence in Lebanon. As a result, General Ali Haidar, the commander of Syria's special forces' army units sent a nine-truck convoy of guns and animunition to Abu Moussa's camp in the Bekaa valley early this year. Arafat's nicture was torn from the walls of the camp. The break was in the open.

Syria promised the matineers Libyan and Iranian money as more of Arafat's former henchmen turned up in Damascus. Arafat had sent the increasingly argumentative Labadi into exile last year, ordering him to edit the PLO's glossy magazine Palestine in Brussels. Labadi joined Abu Saleh in Syria. "I was truly shocked," Arafat said when I asked about Labadi's defection.

Arafat appealed to Soviet President Andropov, who sent a friendly but puzzled letter in reply. The PLO leader made his greatest miscalculation. He went to Damascus and appealed to President Assad's brother Rifaat to quash the mutiny, assuming that Rifaat would take Saudi Arabia's advice and do so. Since the President. of Syria had already given his blessing to the rebellion, Arafat was in effect trying to set brother against brother. Both Assad brothers hurriedly approved his expulsion.

In one last effort to quell the mutiny, Arafat carried out a purge of his own ranks, dispatching Haj Ismael into, 18 exile in Tunis, Again it was too late. Today, Abu Saleh sits in his neat 22 Damascus office, talking wistfully of 23 the need to "purify" Fatah, Surrounded by Syrian troops in 24 Tripoli, Aratat talks of betrayal, 25 continually repeating that he is still the SO elected and legitimate leader of the PLO.

Abu Saleh and Abu Moussa are working on that, trying to win a majority in Fatah to unseat him. The last battle cannot be far away.

Louisiana, remember, is the state that had the legendary Hucy Long as governor in the 1930s. Everyone knew he was a crook and everyone seemed to love him. Going farther back, it is significant that under French domination Louisiana inefficient, corrupt and cheerful, while as a Spanish possession it was very well run indeed in a quiet sort of way. What is significant about this is that the Spanish history is always played down, and that the French are given credit for almost everything the Spaniards did.

So have a look at the election result, come Sunday or Monday, and see whether Louisiana has gone back to its old colourful ways. Assuming, of course, that Mr Parkinson is not still dominating the headlines and crowding out the real news. If he has been relegated to yesterday's news, then I shall be able to come back. The trouble is out here that no British news ever gets through and I may be here for life. Actually, I'm not sure I'd mind that very much.

It's a bizarre experience, seeing a chunk of your life dramatized on stage. partly reminded of the reality, and partly caught up in the fiction created from it. Hugh Whitmore's play Pack of Lies (which opens at the Lyric, Shaftesbury Avenue on Wednesday) is based on events in autumn 1960 when M15 agents spent more than two months in our house, watching Soviet spics Peter and Helen Kroger, who were later sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

During the five years they had lived opposite, the Krogers had become friends - Helen popped in to see my mother practically every day – and when Jim Skardon of MI5 first came to talk to my parents their name was not menuioned. He was, he said, interested in a man who spent weekends in the area, and showed them a photograph (of Gordon Lonsdale, otherwise Conon Molody of the KGB as it turned out), hut my parents hadn't seen him. MIS had not been able to discover where this man was going and, since our house overlooked the end of the alleyway he used, they asked if they could station agents in the house for a couple of days.

On the first Sunday, my mother was looking out of the kitchen window when she saw the man in the photograph come out of the Krogers' front door, hurry down the path and disappear into the alleyway. The agents stayed on; my hrother and 1, then 17 and 15, were told that they were police of sorts, that we weren't to say a word about them to anyone, but we were not told who they were watching. My mother, on the other hand, had to go on seeing Helen almost every day, pretending nothing was wrong.

There were close shaves. One of the girls, in her haste to hide when she saw Helen coming, left her handbag on the kitchen floor. My mother didn't spot it until Helen was already in the room, then picked it up and flung it into a cupboard saying: "That daughter of mine never puts anything away".

With hindsight, what she did during those nine weeks was extraordinary. She was forced to take on a highly trained, experienced professional at her own deceitful game, and won. Once it was all over, it remained a source of great sadness. She never went to sleep without thinking about Helen in Holloway.

I believe now that it shortened her life. She died of a heart attack 13 years ago at the age of 63. For years, I thought it was just had luck. After all. MI5 didn't know that first day that Lonsdale's contacts would turn out to be the Krogers. But then last year, Nigel West revealed in his book A Matter of Trust MIS 1945-72, that when they approached my ommend it should not take place in the final six weeks in case it precipates labour or introduces infection. Where there is an increased risk of miscarriage, absti-nence for the whole 40 weeks is advised. The medical newspaper Hospital Doctor, has recently re-viewed three research projects in an attempt to assess the value of this standard teaching

In 1979 an article in The Lancet confirmed traditional views, but only 70 London women were investigated. There was a clear association between a poor condition of the baby at birth and sexual intercourse in the last month of. pregnancy. A very much more comprehensive study from Israel, also published in The Lancet, was based on interviews with 10,000 women; in uncomplicated preg-nancies there appeared to be no. danger to either mother or baby. The third paper analysed, North Carolina, showed that whatever their doctors' advice, two-thirds of women stop intercourse before the final month. As a result of the Israel study, most doctors now agree intercourse is safe in normal pregnancies.

1960s, is again be-coming a threat to the health of 1,900 million people who live in malarial zones, and to travellers.

Two new anti-malaria drugs are being developed. One, melfloquine, has been researched at the Walter Reed Army Institute in Washington. The other is derived from two of the active components of quinghao, a Chinese herb which has been used to treat malaria for 2,000 years.

People intending to visit malarial zones should ask their doctors which drugs are still useful in the area concerned, and what dose they should take. The London School of Hygicne and Tropical Medicine in Keppel Street is very helpful to those whose general practitioners are out. of touch with the present situation.

at the diagnosis in a case reported in Medical News, of a man who had a recurrently inchy nose. He was suffering from angina.

The classic story of angina is of a gripping, or heavy, pain behind the breastbone, radiating to the neck and jaw, after exercise or emotion. However, anginal pain is fequently not typical; it can, and often does, come on at rest, it can be felt on either side of the chest or in the back; it can simulate toothache, indigestion, or cause pains in the hand.

A careful history, a high level of suspicion and modern equipment are needed to make a diagnosis. Dr Robert Reichstein and Dr William Stein needed all three when they saw a 60-year-old New York man who complained that the bridge of his nose itched when he walked quickly or made love. The itching disappeared when he rested. As simple measures failed to help, the doctors arranged an exercise electrocardiograph. It showed a clear relationship tween the itch and physical activity. After a coronary bypass operation the patient no longer had to scratch his nose or pause at inopportune moments.

Gerard Hoffnung died in 1959. His humour lives on thanks to the efforts of his widow. Madeleine Kingsley meets Annetta Hoffnung

Gerard Hoffnung's sudden death from a brain haemorrhage in 1959 deprived his cult following of a cartoonist, a broadcasting humorist and the musician-extraordinaire whose Festival Hall extravaganizas (featuring solos for vacuum cleaner and the A flat foghorn) cocked an eccentric snook at classical pomposity.

Annetta Hoffnung also lost a husband of only 34, the father of three-year-old Ben and baby Emily. Looking back now, she says her seven-year marriage was "perhaps always too charmed to last". It would be understandable if like Queen Victoria, Annetta Hoffnung had embraced widowhood as an institution of black weeds and if-only hitterness: "But I'd hate people to think I'm one of those wives of the late famous who never let go or move forward," she says. "Certainly I've taken charge of my husband's work - it would have been a great loss for everyone if the drawings had been locked away and forgotten. But I've never thought to promote a Hoffnung industry as such. I've simply responded to the demand which far from dwindling actually seems to be increasing each year, as new generations discover Gerard. Any morning the post may bring an order for 8,000 Hoffnung greeting cards from New York's Keunedy Centre "which means I spend the next three days painstakingly counting them out, nipping down to the supermarket for a likely cardboard box and driving the precious package down to the freight office at Heathrow airport. A garage at the hottom of the garden serves as a repository for 14 crates of Hof-

The house is light and decorative a far cry, says Annetta Hoffnung, from the ponderously Edwardian house in the garden suburb on the other side of Hampstead Heath, which Gerard inherited from his German mother, and where the young couple lived. There, Gerard once picked up his cherry-cheeked housekeeper, Maria, and held her out of the window by way of a prank punishment for hurning his dinner.

He talks cheerfully, with a bit of overcompensatory bluster to make a stranger feel at home. At 61, a tallish, lightly built man with grey hairs only just in the majority, he took an early retirement two years ago from the Post Office, where he'd worked since joining the Civil Service in Liverpool at 16. He was a personnel manager, responsible, ironically, for prepar-ing staff for retirement.

"We like them to start "We like them to start planning about five years m advance," he said, unconscious of the still habitual use of "we" and the present tense. "For some people, men especially, it can be a very traumatic experience. If they're not prepared for it, some of them can just give up and die, you know. We advise them how best know. We advise them how best to invest their money, what clubs they can join, how to. claim their entitlements -rebates, benefits, travel cards and such like. So at least he'd been prepared and any of the competitiveness for his own retirement. Well that comes with exams. We actually, I didn't think much don't have degrees or diplomas.

There are three stages of life: childhood, adult working life and retirement. Children grow up faster, working lives are cut by unemployment, redundancy and early retirement, and so the third age becomes longer. People in this time of life are still energetic and eager to remain involved in the outside workd, not thrown onto the scrap heap. How to pass another possible 20 or 30 years without an organized role in life has become one of the major concerns of the 1980s. In London, one solution is gradually emerging, an organization conceived and run by retired people called the University of the Third Age.

It offers courses of study and activities to retired people and those out of work, and is organized and administered by the members themselves.

Anne Ryan read about a proposed U3A last year, in a copy of Options magazine, and she and Joe volunteered to join a group of 70 other interested retired people for a study week at Trinity College, Cambridge.

The idea of U3A is based on the Université de la Troisième Age, which runs successfully throughout France. "But we're not the Open University," Anne explained, "What we wanted to avoid was a formal neacherpupil relationship - I think we're all a bit too old for that -

At the end of the successful week, the Cambridge group decided to set up an official branch of U3A - which left the Ryans with a problem. It would be too expensive and tiring to travel to Cambridge every week. What they needed was something nearer home.

They contacted Brian Groombridge, head of Extra Mural studies at University College, London. He recruited the Ryans, and it was decided to run a pilot scheme of four subjects - French, English literature, art and art history -Surech Kars

Anne said she thought the most important function of U3A was that "it gives yon something to get up for. You've got to brush your teeth, comh your hair, smarten yourself up, get out of the house and open your mouth. Some people talk to no one but the milkman from one week to the next."

One hope, of course, would be that any eventual predator would take the form of a socialist millionaire. A rare breed; possibly extinct. The most likely candidate must auto-matically be Robert Maxwell, the publisher.

Clearly the subject will be raised at the next general council meeting of the TUC. One of its tasks will be to appoint a committee to look at the financial viability of a TUC newspaper at a cost of £7m.

The attractions of such a venture, however slight, are likely to be greater than the accumulation of a shareholding in a company whose policies it will be unable to influence.

One of the answers to Labour's professed need to retain a foothold Fleet Street is to start an immediate campaign to build safeguards into the constitution of representation, should invest in the the floated company before its Stock Exchange debut. One such guarantee would be for voting shares to be beld in trust. Thus only non-voting stock could be bought, which in turn would be of interest only to investors and not to predators.

> However, if Mr Kinnock deploys this argument at any future meeting with the Reed board, he will be told that investors will pay less for nonvoting stock and that they would receive less for the flotation. Reed International, it will be said, is not a charity.~

The company has been prepared to hunt for an acceptable chairman, and it will be prepared to make sure that, in the first instance, anyway, shareholdings are spread thinly - but it will not be prepared to see its subsidiary undervalued.

Reed points out that any right wing capitalist seeking to buy the Mirror would find his ambitions under scrutiny by the Monopolies Commission, whose brief is to "protect the public interest". Whether political as well as commercial monopoly would be considered sufficient reason to block the bid is another matter.

Four years ago the first volleys wen being exchanged in what has turned out to be the most intense debate on nuclear weapons since the Second World War. A group of Nato planners was then reported to be proposing the introduction of new US cruise and Persbing missiles into Europe. Soon President Brezhnev weighed in with the first of many combined Soviet offers and threats will soon be arriving. The same group of Nato planners, known as the High-Level Group, is now completing a report on another set of US nuclear weapons in Europe. These are short-range artillery shells, gravity bombs, offensive and defensive missiles and even mines. Unlike cruise missiles, which can attack Soviet territory, they are designed for use against fairly close military targets on, or just behind, the battlefield.

There are many similarities with the earlier situation. A group of expert officials is working witbout any publicity on poliucally-loaded proposals for its masters, at a time when increased Soviet activity in comparable missiles is reported. Many proposals are being put forward in the Pentagon for the modernization of Nato's stockpile. Moreover, short-range weapons are potentially more controversial than long-range because they are more nerous, and more likely to sort of political sacrifice for the cruise and Pershing missiles, be-cause after the British and West German elections the success of the long-range programme is reasonably assured. Any cuts now should be in return for a notable improvement in conventional forces or in elements of the battlefield nuclear arsenai that will remain.

Against this, it is pointed out that Nato's past promises oblige it to remove a certain number of weapons, on a one-for-one basis, as the cruise and Pershing missiles arrive. For reductions beyond the 572 such missiles proposed, it is hopeless to rely on arms control because this is a notoriously difficult area in which to negotiate: East and West stockpiles are not at all comparable, the distinction between nuclear and conventional capabilities are rarely clear-cut, and verification may be impossible. So all Nato can do is look hard at its stockpile and make a strategic judgment on what it really needs.

It is hard to find anyone wbo believes that the number of weapons is anything but excessive. In practice, the proposed reductions will not make much difference to Nato's nuclear options. The only systems to be removed will be Nike-Hercules air defence missiles and atomic mines, neither of which is considered usable. Systems such as artillery pieces capable of taking nuclear weapons are unlikely to be decreased in number, to ensure that the widest number of Nato countries can in principle be involved in nuclear operations. All that will happen is that there will be less nuclear ammunition to pass around.

So the proposed reductions are

David Watt A Falkland chance too good to miss

Buenos Aires In a week's time, Argentina has its first election for nearly a decade. To anyone interested in politics it is a fascinating struggle in its own right: low-keyed by Latin American standards but grim and likely to be very close. To the British observer, however, the overwhelming question is whether democracy is going to produce a government any more likely to settle the Falklands question on reasonable terms than the bitter and embattled military regime now bowing out. The answer, like almost everything else in Argentina, is enveloped in clouds of rhetoric and emotion. After last year's defeat, Las Maivinas is more than ever the most obsessive issue of national honour. Jorge Luis Borges's remark that the dispute was like two bald men fighting over a comb is no more welcome in Buenos Aires than it is in Downing Street. Mrs Thatcher is the figure (outside Argentina) that everyone most likes to hate. And even the arrival of as inoffensive a person as myself in Buenos Aires has been denounced in recent days by "the Veterans of The Malvinas" and others as grossly insulting.

Nevertheless the answer is still a qualified yes. It is clear from the conversations of their closest advisers and from the logic of events that each of the principal contenders for the presidency - Italo Luder, the Peronist frontrunner, and Raul Alfonsin, the Radical Party chal-lenger – is beginning to look for a settlement of the Falklands dispute and, given any real encouragement from the British side, would approach discussions in a more realistic frame of mind than any Argennine government since the 1960s. In the first place, the military junta is for the moment discredited and demoralized. It is regarded with a contempt that is open, complète and unpunished. The reasons for this collapse go beyond the war to today's economic shambles in particular, but there is no doubt that the war is generally considered an unmitigated disaster. All connected with it are in public disgrace. Nicanor Costa Mendez, Galtieri's Foreign Minister at the beight of the crisis, for instance, has been unable to secure the backing of any party to run for the Senate or even the House of Deputies.

The bindsight consensus even among people close to the junta is that the use of force was an error of principle which misjudged not just the Britisb but other Latin American countries, the Americans and the Europeans; did untold damage internationally, and wrecked already shaky finances.

Starting from this point the main political parties are now toying with conclusions. One prominent Peron-ist put it this way: "We bave three possible courses of action. One is to do nothing - but public opinion will demand movement and all they have seen on the contrary is the British consolidating a huge base on our doorstep. That is a recipe for more foolishness, not now perhaps but later on. The second possibility is to Malvinize our foreign policy altogether - to make everything dependent on the issue. This would more or less mean throwing in our lot with the Soviet Union and Castro and the non-aliged move-ment, perhaps reneging on our foreign debts. This, too, is foolishness, though there are some who want it. Very well, there is nothing left but to negotiate with the British and to mend our fences with the US and Europe."

to declare a formal end to the war? The answer, after a certain amount of legalistic prevarication, is that if Argentina declared peace, it would have no satisfactory ground for pressing the Brazilian and Uruguayan goveroments to deny the British transit facilities to the Falklands. And since this is one of the main levers the Argentines bave against Britain, they would be mad to throw it away without a quid pro quo

What would the quid would be? Some gesture from the British that indicated they were not intending to build up a huge and permanent strategie base on the island as soon as communications were made easy for them to do so. Perhaps a reduction in size of the exclusion zone, it is suggested, would be a start.

And what, Mrs Thatcher always scathingly asks, would negotiations be about? The Argentines reject the present British preference (assuming talks were started at all) for settling relatively harmless questions about commercial relations and the like first. They can foresee Mrs. Thatcher pocketing the preliminary agree-ments and stringing them along for another 17 years on the sovereignty issue. So far as they are concerned this is the crux of the dispute and they insist on it absolutely.

But the war has changed things to the extent that the party politicians and their advisers now seem ready to reexamine fairly long leaseback solutions on Hongkong lines. to envisage international guarantees for the islanders both before and after the "lease" expires and finally to fudge the question of whether talks can start at all without the presupposition of Argentine sover-eignty - the point on which the discussions of 1982 (inally broke down. Why, they ask, can we not embark on negotiations on the basis of the formula agreed to by British and Argentine officials in 1968 which said, in effect, that the UK would recognize Argentina's sover-cignty but only when the British government had been satisfied that the islanders' interests were secured?

The truthful reply is that a lot of blood-stained water has flowed beneatb the bridge since then and Mrs Thatcher is not ready to go back to the pre-war position as if nothing had happened in the meantime. But the question is well worth thinking about, all the same. Time, after all, is not on the British side. And by that I do not just mean that pressure for negotiation from the US, our European partners and the UN, will become increasingly insistent or even that the cost of Fortress Falklands will continue to mount alarmingly.

The point is that anyone surveying the scene here in Buenos Aires is bound to conclude that the establishment of this new government will provide a climate for negotiations that is unlikely to recur.

They have long been criticized for creating the illusion of a nuclear military option, able for example to halt a tank invasion, while in reality any use would merely start off fullblooded nuclear exchanges carlier than would have otherwise been necessary. To use them effectively would require early authorization to "go nuclear", bui Nato's consultative procedures quite properly cnsure that would be delayed before any request for use were answered. The last time, Nato tried to improve its short-range arsenal was in 1978 with the "neutron bomb". or the "enhanced radiation weapon" as it is known in Nato jargon. So great was the furore then that President Carter decided to hold back production.

Not surprisingly after all that they have been through with the cruise missile debate, Nato leaders are reluctant to agree to yet more weapons projects. Apart from over dictatorial forms of govern-ment, the chances of either Luder or Alfonsin serving a full term without another military coup are probably no better than even. Nevertheless, a settlement ratified by democratic processes is more likely to last from one regime to another than a military filat; and a democratic government which settles the quar-rel with the British is more likely to survive. Philip Howard Fact: fiction is not just ephemera the decent ones tend to publish a correction. It would be agreeable to have the space to publish a short story, or poem, or an extract from a novel every day. In practice the daily avalanche of news, criticism, comment, information, reader for service and features leaves no room for serious fiction. (One could write a tendentious monograph demonstrating that news is a kind of fiction: the good end unhappily, the bad happily; that is what news means.)

And I dare say that the majority of our readers, with 20 minutes in which to read their papers while they are jostled and pushed eyeball to eyeball up against complete strangers on the Central Line, do not have the time or the concentration to read the hard stuff of creative writing, or whatever unsatisfactory epithet you give it.

Nevertheless, it is the real thing. The work of our poets and novelisis matters more and will last longer than the little disturbances of the news. Discovering a good writer is far more exciting than discovering a new painting or a new city.

There are signs that the news about new fiction is catching on. For some time Granta at Cambridge has been spreading the word and making money by publishing new creative writing with Penguin. And next week the latest Fiction Magazine comes out. .

You don't need to be Einstein to work out that it will consist mainly of fiction, to assuage the appetites of us addicts who cannot wait until the next novel. Short stories by Maggie Gee and Russell Hoban are firmly rooted in London. Saul Bellow sets his in Chicago; and George Mackay Brown in the Orkneys. Where else, for either of them? Well, quite a lot of places, but that is another story.

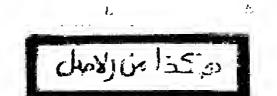

Daily newspapers seldom publish death of the novel: prime suspect, fiction, except by accident; and then Italo Calvino) finds himself located somewhere within the wild imagina-ton of his creator, Clive Sinclair.

The magazine was founded a year ago with a grant of £3,000 from the Arts Council, which still pays its contributors its minimum rate (peanuts). It is carried on by the generosity and enthusiasm of lovers of fiction; like my friend and colleague Philippa Toomey, who bas just lent it a bit of her inheritance to keep the presses turning. In its brief life it has published ome notable scoops that turn other titerary editors green with envy. There was a delightful interview tween Ishiguro and Timothy Mo. And the issue devoted to new Irish writing, including all the pros and the prose of previously unread stars, was a notable coup. Cries of jealousy and admiration from Webb and Tomalin and other literary editors could be heard a mile away from Flect Street.

The magazine's editor, Judy Cooke, sees its prime function as discovering and introducing new writers, and providing them with a regular platform. It can keep the links between writer and reader in the long wait for the next novel, or the long gap between hardback and paperback publication.

I can see that commercially it is a I can see that commercially it is a fairly dicey project. How many people want to read fiction, for Jane's sake, when they can read politics, gossip, crime, and all the other raw material of life in the daily press? We also look at the new telephones and developments in cable and satellite television.

in the last decade telecommunications and its political control has become an remely sensitive issue both home and overseas. The citish Government's attempts. hich were to begin in 1980, to berate the British telecom-munications industry from the dominance of the state con-trolled British Telecom - then part of the Post Office - were to highlight those sensitivities.

Competition would stimulate the electronics industry, com-merce and ultimately the economy as a whole since telecommunications was 25 important an ingredient in successful business activity as was finance, energy and transport. The advance of telecommunications was a measure of the efficiency of the industries which depended on them. That was the theory. Despite the political difficul-ties experienced in the past three years the British Government has remained convinced that the monopoly enjoyed by British Telecom for 60 years must be broken and that British industry must innovate. to compete with any threat from overseas suppliers. That foreign competition will be on show next week in Geneva at Telecom '83 (October 25-November 1) where the world's telecommunication equipment designers, manufacturers and suppliers will have their products on show. The British flag is to be flown through a joint effort by British Telecom and the principal manufacturers in the UK - Plessey, GEC STC and TMC.

It is a curious partnership the relationships because between the companies have been subject to a whole series of stresses in the past three years, fuelled by the Government's attempts to encourage the private sector to compete with British Telecom,

The first moves were made by Sir Keith Joseph, then Secretary of State for industry, who m 1980 outlined the blueprint for a new approach to telecommunications and one that would be the envy of the world. No longer would the British market be dominated by the state. Other suppliers would, be able to provide services and the customers would benefit by being able to buy their telé-phones from whoever they chose.

The theory was flawless but the reality something different. The vehicle for that tran-sition was the British Telecommunications Act which became law in July, 1981. It not only split the postal and giro side of the Post Office from the telecommunications arm of the corporation, creating British Telecom, but it was to empower the Secretary of State for Industry to sward licences to commercial interests wishing to compete with the state corpor-

The whole liberalization policy however had got bogged down. Small manufacturers wishing to compete in equipment supply were to complain constantly that British Telecom which played a crucial role in determining whether products were technically acceptable was not responsive enough and the time delays were unnacceptable. Independent suppliers were to be further annoyed and the Government embarrassed by the expansion of British Telecom into new areas of business activity covering the complete spectrum from the supply of advanced business systems to cable television.

Although it had been discussed for some time, the reality was mescapable. British Telecom itself should be put into private hands, allowing it to grow and modernize at its own communications Act. It would emphasized in 1980 that no company was disbanded and its responsibility divided between Plessey and GEC.

But the liberalization policy was still being pursued albeit modestly. The breakup of the telecommunications giant American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) and the sale of its local operating companies meant that the United States market was going to be more compective. Britain should follow suit. Moves by the Japanese to privatize Nippon Telephone and Telegraph (NTT) and possibly break it up into local operating companies were to convince the Government that it was on the right

For international communi cations, an agreement was signed with British Telecom International last December giving Mercury access to space segments on satellites where BTI acts for the UK as a whole.

Since then, Mercury has taken steps to secure links of its own. Unions in the telecommunications industry have found themselves in the unlikely role of leading the attack on the Government's plans to cut back the size and influence of the public sector.

In the vanguard of the campaign - against both priva-tization of British Telecom and the opening up of competition by the private enterprize Mercury group - is the traditionally ing Workers' Union. The union has for years been part of the right-wing hulwark of the TUC oow in the ascendancy. Although its membership remains essentially conservative the leadership swung dramatically to the left in clections during the summer, with the result that the cam-paign of industrial action is now being pursued with renewed vigour. The campaign of "guerilla" action intensified this month, involving more than 1,000 engineers in BT's international telephone exchanges. The really exciting develop-ments for Mercury still lie in the future. At present it is offering only leased lines, and its operations are limited to London. As the network develops switched services will become practicable, possibly at the end of next year. Traffic should then build up as more cities are linked into the system.

Will Mercury succeed? The company believes that once the service is there the customers will appear, perhaps in vast numbers. The three shareholders have so far staked nearly £90m on the belief that these predictions are right.

The big temptation to shop abroad

British Telecom began hinting that the liberalization of the telecommunications industry would not necessarily mean a bonanza for British industry earlier this year. Mr Charles May, BT's director of research, first sent a shudder through the telecommunications equipment industry when he explained at a private meeting in March that if BT became a private company it should huy most of its equipment from abroad. He said that given the choice he would personally recommend that more equipment was bought from Japan, Sweden and Germany.

Subsequently his thoughts were reinforced by Sir George Jefferson, chairman of BT, who said that there was much room for improvement from the British industry. He indicated that as a prelude to privatization BT was considering shaking up its traditionally cosy relationship with its main British suppliers, GEC, Plessey and STC. Although BT still takes about 80 per cent of its caupment from the big three. Sir George made it clear that BT had already begun talks with IBM, ITT and American Tele-phone and Telegraph about importing large quantities of United States built telecommunications equipment. Later BT denied that its official policy would be to buy from abroad.

However the comments are deeply embarrassing for the Government which originally dreamed that the privatization of BT would open up huge new markets for telecommunications equipment for British industry.

When the Government first mooted the possibility that BT would be privatized it took the view that a host of new entrepreneurial companies would spring up to take advantage of the new markets, particularly for customer equipment, that would be created once the BT monopoly ended. The United Kingdom market ly to the changed marketplace. for customer equipment is estimated by consultants, PACTEL, to be worth about £230m this year. The market splits five ways with £100m of orders available for small private exchanges (PABXs), about £50m of orders for large PABXs over 100 lines, a £30m market for special telephones, £20m market for key systems and a £30m market for other equipment including fascimiles, answering machines and periph-cral telephone devices.

But the original strategy which was designed to shake BT's cosy relationship with its traditional suppliers by providing market opportunities for British firms is not working in the way that was originally intended. To date very few new products have reached the market from private industry.

The established suppliers like GEC, Plessey, STC and TMC are more concerned abont BT's threat to buy major items of equipment from abroad than the additional competition provided by a new breed of companies entering the customer equipment market. Ironically those new companies which have been established are tending not to compete direct with BT for customers. Instead they are tending to compete for work with BT which still has they are tending to compete for work with BT which still has tower a subject to companies and large PABX's has attracted most attention from new advantage of liberalization. Merim a small company in Clauseret him hacked by film Clauseret him hacked by film they are tending to compete for work with BT which still has dominant position in the supply of telecommunications service. dominant position in the supply of telecommunications service. A number of interim measures have been agreed to speed up liberalization but the delay in setting proper standards means that the real benefit for liberalization in this area will not be felt until next year. Even then buyers are advised not to buy equipment for a few years at least by which time standards will be agreed and there will be true competition and lower prices in the marketplace.

In the meantime Plessey and GEC have both decided to import some PABXs until they have time to develop new systems of their own. More progress has been made in introducing cordless tele-phones. The Home Office allocated frequencies for cordless phones earlier this year and the first legal products came onto the market in the Spring. Fidelity Radio, which launched a new cordless phone in conjunction with BT in April estimates that the UK market for the phones could reach one million units a year by 1987. In 1984 Fidelity is looking for a market of about 200,000 units. The latest cordless phones cost abont £170 each and employ a small radio link which allows the handset to be used up to 600 feet from the main telephone.

Answercall Geemarc and Answerpieces, which are all British manufacturers meeting the Governent's stipulation that the equipment should be made in Britain as soon as possible with a high proportion of British parts. Fidelity plans to produce about 170,000 cordless phones each year from its factory in West London, while Conver-sation Pieces, will initially assemble a Hongkong designed phone at its Cheltenham factory and will manufacture about 25,000 phones each year.

The ambitious estimates of demand for the new phones stem, in part, from BT's estimate that there are currently 200,000 illegal cordless phones in use in Britain which contravene Home Office rules on wavelengths.

The other major potential market for British companies is the relatively simple production of products like fancy tele-phones, where companies like Conversation Pieces and Astral Telecom are making some headway. Small private companies are also making items of equipment like telephone printers, answering machine and extension phones.

What the Government has yet to discover is whether liberalization will eventually lead to more jobs and a better deal for the consumer, or whether BT's dominant pos-ition will be used to express bition will be used to squeeze British companies by using its new found freedom to buy from abroad_

Putting expansion on the line

Business systems as an annual market is in Britain now worth well over £200m, and growth rates as much as 20 per cent a year are being anticipated. As sales volume grows prices are still tumbling, although more sophisticated equipment is constantly being launched to add to the expansion.

Mr Nicholas Staveley, head of marketing services at BT's Merlin division, said: "From that point of view the hardware is not as price-sensitive as it would otherwise be. The process involves long drawn-out negotiations and a willingness to bury longstanding rivalry between technical, and general unions. A Communications Council aimed at producing closer cooperation between the unions was set up under the auspices of the TUC, with the long-term objective of a single union for the industry. However, progress has been painfully slow between the two main unions – the POEU with 132,000 members; and the 200,000-strong Union of Communication Workers. There has been a move towards a merger between the Society of Telecom Executives and the telecom membership of the Society of Civil and Public Servants. It was thought earlier in the year that the Civil and Public Services Association's 40,000 members in BT would transfer to the POEU, but the right-wing CPSA executve has now gone cold on the idea.

Digital communication enables any form of information -voice, data or images - to be represented and passed through the network in the form of groups of coded digital pulses. Such digital systems offer many advantages over analogue systems in terms of technical performance and cost, but beyond these considerable advantages they represent the beginnings of a fundamental new phase of information exchange.

The new digital networks, and in particular the digital exchanges, are products of a convergence of the technologies of communications and computing. The computer, in the form of the microprocessor, has made it possible to process and

When it comes to telecoms London towers above the rest.

T'EL.ECOM

London has been a major centre of telecommunications for a long time now It's had the well-proven infra-structure of the British Telecom network, with its national and international links, direct and via satellite. This year 17 European nations agreed to spend £250m on a new generation of geostationary weather satellites, to be launched between 1978 and 1990. An international organi-zation called Eumetsat is being created to operate them.

Although Meteosat provides the best continuous observations of the European sector of the globe, the American system of five weather satellites (three geostationary and two polar orbiting) is much more important for worldwide forecasting. Therefore meteorolosists are particularly concerned about recent indications that the US Government is looking for hig savings in its spending on weather satellites (currently put at $230m a year). One threat from Washington making. But the superior is that, unless other countries definition brings Spot 10 a contribute to the operating sensitive borderline, for costs, onc of its two NOAA should be good enough to be polar satellites may not be replaced. Good observations of Europe (or any other specific region of the world) would then be made every six rather than every three hours.

Polar satellites, which circle the globe at a beight of 800 km, give better visible and infra-red images: of clouds than the geostationary craft 36,000 km up. They also give "sounding" data - temperature measure-ments at different levels of the atmosphere. Their disadvantage

And the latest member of the club is India: its Insat communications in computing power is likely to satellite, which NASA recently put into orbit over the Indian Ocean, also carries equipment for meteorological observations.

Britain's fl4m National Remote Sensing Programme, announced this year, recognizes the point: This country will not build its own satellite (though it will contribute to the European Space Agency's ERS-1 ocean-monitoring craft, due for launch in 1987). Instead the Govern-ment's policy is to build a world lead in processing data from other countries' satellites.

For example, the National Remote Sensing Centre (at the Royal Aircraft Establishment, Farnborough) will build up an archive of images from Spot, the land resources satellite which France bopes to launch early in 1985. Spot will be the major commercial competitor to the American's Landsat nonmilitary remote sensing satel-

By the way of comparison, it sbould be poloted out that since the early 1970s, low-altitude American military satellites have been able to pick out objects 20 centimetres across. Under the circumstances, the Third World's growing mistrust for remote sensing is quite understandable.

One of the many sources of potential failure lies in the vibratioo of the rocket at lift-off L-6 and L-7. For instance, more than 40 manufacturers from 11 countries provided the rocket engines electronics and the the engines are generating maximum thrust. Meticulous satellites from vibration damage.

The dreams riding on Ariane workhorses of the space pro-gramme, and the Ariane series is not the first collaborative European venture. However, the decision to press ahead with the current programme was taken in 1973 after various surveys forecast that by the early 1990s more than 180 satellites would be placed in geosynchrocous orbit for communications and direct broadcasting, including 24 for Europe, and many others would be launched for other applications. -

Orders for 24 satelanother 15 are worth £36m.

Although there are 11 coun-tries participating in the Ariane project, the largest contribution of 64 per cent comes from France, with Germany providing another 20 per cent. The total cost of development to completion of the first seven launches is over £500m.

After the test flights of Ariane, the European Space Agency has approved the priociple of transferring to an organizatioo called Arianespace responsibility for production and marketing of launchers. Arianespace was formed three years ago and its principal shareholders include 36 European aerospace firms, 11. European banks and the French Rocket launchers are the national space agency, CNES, where the designs for Ariane originated. Arianespace has a capital of more than £12m subscribed by shareholders in the 11 countries.

The transition from the European Space Agency to Arianespace was planned for completion by 1984, after which launches would be conducted on a strictly commercial basis.

Arianespace has already taken firm orders for launching 24 satellites and options have; been taken out on 15 more, making an order book worth more than £360m. The prospects for using space techniques are influenced by the economic lites and options for considerations defined most simply as the cost of placing one kilogram of payload in orbit. At the time of Early Bird that cost was about £2,500. Clearly, useful payloads weigh in many times more than that and the target is to cut costs by about one-hundredth of the early launches. Ariane can place a satellite of about 4,500 kilograms in geosynchronous orbit or two payloads of equivalent weight.

Despite a perfectly acceptable start to its career by comparison with other lauochers, such as those which form the workhors-es of the American stable (Atlas Centaur had five failures in the first eight launchers and Titan three failures in six launches), no indulgence was shown to Ariane when it failed. Unfortunately that was the penalty of being a relative newcomer. PW the Government's policy for public expenditure has been very maladroit since the election. The guidance after yesterday's Cahinet meeting was that some outstanding details have had to be referred to the so called Star Chamber of three ministers led hy Lord Whitelaw, but that otherwise this year's public spending management has fallen into place. That may be no more thao a piece of window dressing to conceal the fact that most of the Chancellor's colleagues feel that he and the Treasury have been exaggerating the problem all summer and need themselves to be cut down to size. The more the pity. The Chancellor's position has clearly been aggravated. and therefore undermined, by internal Cabinet politics that will have unfortunate results for the future if ministers prefer the quiet life where public spending is concerned.

The roots of this loss of authority by the Chancellor can is to reduce spending or to raise be traced to the Cabinet meeting taxes - unless they are prepared of July 7. On that day, before the meeting, The Times published a forecast that Mr Lawson would be demanding euts of £500 million from departmental budgets. This was necessary to cope with an overrun in the target for this year's spending. It had been caused by an unestimated increase in demand responsive items of expenditure like general practitioner services. Since that could not be controlled, corresponding cuts were going to have to be found in other parts of the budget already covered by cash limits.

The Chancellor's task was clearly made more difficult at that Cabinet meeting where he Undeniably the presentation of was quite unjustly blamed by his colleagues for attempting to bounce them into a decision by the use of a premature leak. It was evidently a bruising experience for Mr Lawson, It has left him politically on the defensive, and certainly contributed to the hlandness of yesterday's Cabinet meeting which augurs ill for the prospects that this Government will get hold of the issue of public expenditure early enough in this Parliament to give it some economic and political room to manoeuvre.

If inflation is to be controlled and, preferably, reduced there has to be a constant effort to cut down the size of the public deficit. The deficit leads to inflation and high interest rates. Given the colossal momentum of an overall hudget of more than £120 hillion it is not surprising that ministers wrestle fretfully during the annual exercise to reduce Government spending. Their choice each year to take the inflationary course and expand the scale of borrowing. As we bave seen, a lower rate of inflation has helped the economy to expand. It must be natural therefore for ministers to favour a course of action which reduces taxes and thus contributes to further growth rather than. one which controls the deficit by the imposition of more taxation.

The Government is thus faced with a choice of alternative policies, both of which are entirely respectable, but have different political connotations. The quiet life approach, as we have seen this autumn, does not not the Prime Minister has been lead to anything like a quiet life for ministers. Any ministerial attempt to rein back on planned, or more often unplanned but inexorable, increases in future spending, is greeted with cries of shame and generally held up as evidence of a cruel Government cutting into existing services. Ministers have thus been on the defensive, and unless they are careful, there they will stay. There is no chance of their being able to capture the initiative in this argument about public spending, let alone winning it, unless they can provide the full facts of the case which make these decisions so difficult now, and increasingly difficult in the future. To that they must add some creative ideas about how these difficulties could be ameliorated. That is still sadly lacking. The Chancellor is said to be keen to open up this debate so that the whole country can contemplate the future, and measure the implications of a quiet life on public spending, punctuated each year by theagonising ministerial exercise of cutting it into shape, against the possibility of more radical thinking about the mix of public and private provision for all kinds of welfare, perhaps even including the question of the retirement age and the long term mill-stone of publicly financed earningsrelated pensions. If the Chancellor receives the Prime Minister's support in this argument, be may prevail against those of his departmental colleagues who, in the Prime Minister's favourite expression, bave been "nobbled" by their departments. It is not only Mr Lawson, however, who has yet to discover whether or nobbled too.

Alternatives to custodial sentencing

From Professor Nigel Walker Sir, I agree with the criminal lawyers whose leiter you published on October 14. It is both illogical and a pity that there should be no way of Sir, Does Jeane Kirkpatrick serious-ly believe that the security interests of the United States are threatened by events in El Salvador or Nicaragua, something to which she suspending a youth custody sentence or a detention centre order, for that matter. accuses West Europeans of being extraordinarily hlind and indifferent

The suspended prison sentence saves a substantial number of offenders from burdening our prison system at any time in their career, without contributing much to the crime rate. To deprive courts of the power to suspend the only custodial sentences which can be imposed on those under 21 is difficult to justify. Lady James and I argued this in a note of dissent from the Younger Report of 1975: but the majority, who were very optimistic about the therapeutic value of youth custody, rejected our arguments. The first Government White Paper accepted our view, hut the eventual Bill did not.

An amendment of the Criminal Justice Act 1982 to put this illogicality right would be very suitable for a Private Member's Bill. Jeane Kirkpatrick finds most disturbing her assertion that West-ern nations ignore human rights

Ms Belford correctly points out that a custodial sentence may only be passed if the court "is of the opinion that no other method of would be eligible for release on parole after serving one-third of that dealing with the offender is appro-priate." Public spending

From Sir Ian Gilmour, MP for Chesham & Amersham (Conservativel

Sir, Sir Douglas Hague (feature, October 18) claims as a matter "of logic not of judgment" that "if productivity (efficiency) in the public sector rises more slowly than the private then - given the same rates of pay in each - either tax rates must rise continually or the volume of public sector activity must be progressively reduced".

This propositioo, if it were true, would be extremely important, but it is itself logically flawed. If the Government employs a constant proportioo of the workforce and all rates of pay rise together, then the proportion of Government expenditure in the mooey national income will be constant, giveo uncontroversial assumptions about profit margins and so oo. Or would these opponents merely have struck socoer? Did they strike this week precisely because he was beginning to make some beadway with Washington? We need to know.

The future is equally unclear at this stage. Mr Bishop clearly retained considerable popular support, in spite of his shortcomings. The new rulers will

TASKS AT TRANSPORT

It would be unfortunate if the questions of subsidy for the rapid passage of Mr King through the swing doors of the public mind to any downgrading of the ministerial tasks awaiting Mr Ridley once he has mastered bis briefs. The department has been indifferently led under when, as he must, be persuades recent governments of both his colleagues that British Rail parties and while Mr Ridley may and rural hus networks deserve be no Ernest Marples be bas the opportunity to break that tradition.

Here is a considerable personal challenge. Mr Ridley must not only survive the butterflies of Otmoor (a pastoral site on the proposed route of the M40) but backbench sniping from his predecessor but one (Mr Howell) who has espoused the cause of a rail link beneath the English Channel. The joh will require Mr Ridley to abandon the private politics of the Treasury for the public reckoning with vocal ioterest groups and delegatioos which will inevitably include Conservative commuters and Gloucestershire rail-users.

The job at the Ministry of Transport is not one for an atavistic privatizer, impressed neither by the managerial progress recently made in the public bus and rail industries nor by our cootinuiog national fascination with the iron roads. There Concreting over redundant lines is nothing shameful in the romance of rail or in a mounting disappointment that it is the French or Japanese and not the British who are innovating successfully in train design and track layout. At the top of Mr favour with the planner Pro-Ridley's agenda are the joint fessor Peter Hall, who is no him little time.

Peripheral enthusiasm for selling. off Sealink or (at long last) letting entrepreneurs into station catering will not help the minister when, as he must, be persuades realistic levels of support in their public service responsibilities.

Of course a tension will remain between public service and the necessity of using commercial criteria to secure efficiency in operatioos. But Mr Ridley has some winners to back. In Mr Reid, the new chairman of British Rail, he has an astute caretaker who, if be can avoid the industrial relations chaos of two years ago, deserves warm support in carrying out the corporate plan bequeathed by Sir Peter Parker. And if the Serpell report is consigned to a bottom draw, so be it, as long as pressure is kept up on productivity, the ending of restrictive practices and managerial devolution shown at its best in the running of the Inter-City division.

reluctant to commit itself as deeply to other Caribbean and Central American states as it is committed to Cuba, which has been a very expensive asset. It rebuffed the Manley regime in Jamaica, and has been cautious about committing itself wholeheartedly to the survival of the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua. But Grenada would be much cheaper to support than Cuba. and in the present elimate of East-West relations Moscow may feel it has little to gain from not treading too beavily on Washington's toes. The possibility that Grenada could become a fully-fledged satelite of Moscow is therefore not to be automatically dismissed. Cuba would welcome it, but there will also be strong regional pressure to bold it back.

On roads Mr Ridley faces a sequence of "second-order" de-cisions that will test his resolve. The stop-go planning of the Al-Archway Road - in north London is a scandal. As with the extension of the M40 from Oxford to Birmingham there comes a point when the "due process" of our cumbersome town and country planning system must end, and a minister must give the starting signal. Landed commuters from Kent and East Sussex will not hless Mr Ridley for the decision he must surely take soon to abandon the anomalous Tonbridge to Hastings rail line.

But Mr Ridley's big test is London – the untidy legacy of Mr Howell's dithering over the subsidy level for Loodon Transport. There can be little douht that continuing high levels of public subsidy are necessary to sustain an Edwardian tube network and a coogested bus service. Mr Ridley's dislike of large-scale collective provision will not obviate the need for him to buckle down to practical questions of apportioning the cost of the public subsidy for London Transport; Mr Jenkin's precipitate moves to abolish the Greater London Council give Play's bad language

From Lord Willis

Sir, In his review of the play, Just a Kick in the Grass (October 12), your critic made the comment that the Churchill Theatre, Bromley, had refused to stage the play because of its bad language. This is not true. The play had been rehearsed and although there were some reservations about the coarse language the governing board of the theatre decided to let the production go ahead. However, two or three days before the scheduled opening night we received legal advice which indicated that there was a danger that the play was libellous and that we would be taking a risk and possibly incur heavy damages if we allowed it to be staged.

An emergency meeting was called and the play was withdrawn, solely on the basis of this legal advice. Your reviewer implied an act of censorship which did not take place. Yours faithfully. WILLIS.

Although most of the large composite insurance companies - including Royal, Guardian Rnyal Exchange and Commer-cial Union - have offices in West Germany, they have never been able to complete a takeover, and thereby grab significant place in the market.

State control in France have prevented similar moves.

The problem is worse for brokers, because a number of countries insist that they cannot conduct business if they do not ha offices within their borders.

The EEC, in a long-running battle, has just formally asked West Germany why it has failed to implement a 1978 co-insurance directive - the first step towards a prosecution in the time, with case histories that the department is collecting from trade associations. It is hoped that these will be multilateral negotiations, to pave the way for liberalization of trade in international services such as banking, insurance, shipping, aviation, consultancy and data transmission - a move initiated by the US at last year's ministerial meeting.

The EEC insurance market remains the most contentious subject. British companies are angry that the German company should be able to take advantage of the freedom of the London financial market when it is almost impossible for

Gerrard & National INTERIM STATEMENT

In the first six months of the company's financial year, United Kingdom interest rates, as measured by Clearing Bank Base Rates, have declined from 104% to 9% although the fall in yield on money market assets has been much less pronounced.

During the half year to October 5th good profits have been achieved but they are understandably at a level well below the record figures for the comparable period last year.

Whilst it is intended to recommend an increase in the final dividend the Directors have decided to leave the interim dividend unchanged at 3 pence per share on the increased share capital. The dividend will be paid on December 7th, 1983, to members on the Register at the close of business on November 11th, 1983. Transfer books will be closed for the day on November 14th, 1983.

Telerate, the New York-based but British-owned financial news, is making an increasingly aggressive push into the noo-American markets dominated by its leading rival, Reinters. The latest move is the appointment of Telerate's senior marketing executive, Mr. John Jessup, to take charge of its drive into Europe, the Middle East and Africa. Mr Jessup, a former Reuters journalist and salesman who switched sides in 1978, becomes managing director of the new British subsidiary of AP-Dow

Jones/Telerate. This partnership, owned 49.9 per cent each by the Associated Press and Dow Jones, has been established to sell Telerate services outside North America. It eupersedes an arrangement that gave Dow Jones exclusive distribution rights. The growing transatlantic competition makes some City. analysts doubt the valuations of £1,000m or even £1,500m being bandied about for Remers' proposed stockmarket floata-tion (leaving aside the question of whether its owners can agree on a formula for the sale).

President Resgan has had 1,000 days in the White House. But America's closest going to happen until after the 1984 elections. Can this be true?" he asked. The answer allies are not at all certain who is in charge on economic and trade issues. was unhappily "yes". Some Administration offi

At this critical point in the Administration - when uncer-tainty abounds over the Presicials will even admit this in private conversation. "We're already operating on an election schedule. The White dents plans and forthcoming elections - there is no one person or group of persons other than Mr Reagan appar-ently able to take a firm decision on the more pressing matters of the day House is focused on the election and that's what matters," a US Treasury official said recently. Without a firm "go" from the White House, the rest of the Washington bureacracy is virtually paralyzed. The apparent winner in this struggle to merge the com-merce and trade functions into one super agencey was Mr Malcolm Baldrige, the Commerce Secretary, but he has made clear that he is a loyal soldier who does what he is told by the White Honse. And where is Mr David Stockman, the formerly visible director of the Office of Managment and Budget, whose staff is already gearing, up for work on the 1985 federal budget? If anyone in the Administ-If anyone in the Administ-ration has power to take a decision it is Mr Donald Regan, the Treasury Sec-retary. But he is already campaigning for the President with a back-breaking schedule which leaves little time for other matters. In the end, what all the confusioo points to is the oced for some pre-electioo transitional groop or mechanism with authority to keep matters rolling along while others are preoccupied with the election. The Administration is attempting to fashion such a group in the foreign policy with particular focus on area, with particular focus on the Middle East. A similar group in the economics and trade area would also be helpful.

MARKET REPORT
 by Michael Clark

It looks as though the bubble is about to burst for many of our smaller cil exploration companies.

According to a report out today the number of companies North Sea oil has reached a peak and is likely to decline sharply over the next few years as the industry undergoes a major restructuring.

Mr Martin Lovegrove, an independent consultant who now works for James Capel, the broker, predicts a "major broker, predicts a "major shakeout" over the next three to six years among the 240 companies with interests in North Sea licences.

With Celtic beaten 2-1 in Lisbon by Sporting in the UEFA Cup and, in the words of their manager, David Hay, "dead lucky to get away with losing only two goals", hopes of a return of European glory for Losbon, the city in which they become the first British club to win the Enropean Cup, were crased by Sporting who struck with devastating effect

By Susan Barker and Joanna Durie, Britain's last challengers for the singles title, have produced exciting performances on consecutive days to reach the last eight of the Daiharsu tournament at the Brigh-tion Centre. Yesterday it was Miss Durie's turn. She took only 56 minutes to win 6-4, 6-1 against an experienced, beefy left-bander from Switzerland, Petra Delhees. The impressive thing was the authority with which Miss Barker and Miss Durie exaggerated an expected superiority. Miss Delhees looked sharper yesterday than she had done against Amanda Brown in the first round. She held Miss Durie as far as 4-4 in the first set. Then it became clear that Miss Delhees was comparatively shaky on the back-band as that goily Miss Durie on the concomparatively shaky on the back-hand an that only Miss Durie could improve on the level of perform-ance each had previously attained. The citizens may yet come to praise the still ambitious Caesar When Peter Swales met Billy McNeill in Cups and five League Cups, he retains a State of the second Carlisle a few months ago in his search for refreshing belief that to any sensible player

Manchester City's fifth manager in almost as many years, the talk inevitably turned to the question of money for the purchase of new players in the second division - or, rather, the now embarrassing lack of it. McNeill, probably the most outstanding club captain in Britain other than Danny Blanchflower during the modern era of European football, was accustomed as Celtic's manager to handling notable players. Now he mentioned to Swales a possible player of whom the chairman had never even heard. Well, Mr Swales thought to himself, with a silent, sardonic laugh, at least that's an encouraging start economically.

It was oo more than 18 months since City, the 1982 FA cup finalists, had defeated Wolverhampton at Maine Road al Christmas to lead the first division, only to slide into an accelerating decline precipitated by gross overspending: first by Malcolm Allison and then John Bond. When Trevor Fraocis went ot Italy in a panic sale just before the start of last scason, economies at Maine Road were needed not merely to meet the wages but the gas bill. As McNeill says: "The worry was, when would the slide stop? You have to level out before you can start going up again".

It was hardly a casino of optimism which Swales was offering McNeill. The bank had closed oo the well-intentioned but absurdly over-priced bid to osurp Manchester United's envied position as in too team were back where they came from with the original Mercer-Allison partnership. If Mr Swales, relatively oew to senior football, had cried in supporting the crippling expenditure on players such as Robinsoo from Preston - an estimation by the reengaged Allison now seen at Liverpool to have been justified - and Daley and Francis, his saving grace was that he does passionately believe in Manchester City; that of all chairmen who have allowed a club to overreach themselves, he does oot appear to be sceking personal gain, undemonstratively leaving his manager to manage from day to day. Now, for the first time, he may have the right man. There are one or two who bave likened McNeill's quiet, personable aluiude to Busby's in the early days: he laughs easily and nnaffectedly and, as someone who won the European Cup, nine league championships, five Scottish Carlisle was Jim Tolmie, a promising Scottish striker rescued from an unhappy two years with Lokeren in Belgium, where he at times played full back. If that was a shrewd buy for only £35,000 so, at the same price, was Neil McNab, a midfield player who, as they say, can make the ball talk, but had successively squandered his wide-ranging ability at Tottenham and Brighton. "Now, married and with two children, he realizes the time has come to stop people questioning whether he does have skill." McNeill said.

With Derek Parlanc, a free transfer from Leeds, the top scorer, and three other free transfers, including two Scotsmen, it might be thought that, together with his assistant manager, Jimmy Frizzell, for-merly of Oldham, McNeill was bent oo changing City's colours from sky-bloe to tartan. He denies that it has beco a conscious decision.

"Maybe some people thought that perhaps I felt more confident dealing with Scots, but with the limited funds available I had to go for value for money. They are all giving it. I certainly would not want to develop a speccially Scottish side. What I have found her is that there is a patience, among the players and the public, that you Scotland. We tend up there to lean more on the individual because we are anxious for things to happen in more of a hurry though, having said that, I think Aberdeen won the Cup Winners' Cup because they developed a patient build-

Nicholas and Paul McStay. These players carry some of Scotland's World Cup ambitions in a team eliminated from the European finals.

McNeill rightly considers that the European Champiooship is often an impediment to international managers, obstructiong World Cup preparation, and he thinks that Jock Stein may be fortunate to have the pressure off him - which is certainly not the case at Maine Road.

tip.' As Celtic's captain he earned the nickname of Caesar and he has shown himself willing to rule having moved south. When MacDonald and Bodak were discovered out drinking at 1.00 oo the morning of a preseason match they were dismissed. He believes in discipline work. Mr Swales observes: "In four mooths I have oever been to the club when he was not husy. He certainly is a worker."

After retiring as player McNeill left the game, subsequently returned as manager with Clyde, then moved to Aberdeen, whom he took to second place in the premier division, and eventually moved back to Celtic, where he concentrated oo developing young players, such as Charlie

"There is so much to be done, both with players and the club, and it will take a lot will have to try to move towards promotion, hut you need to look beyond that, to having stability when you get back in the first division. We oeed to develop our own resources beneath the first team. Because the club went out buying expensive players, the juniors lost impetus, they could oot see a way into the first team, and that has to be restored. I found the same situation at Celtic when I returned. It so often happens when a club has been a long while at the top."

If McNeill takes the headlines away from Ron Atkinsoo we can be sure the extravagance will come from his team rather than himself. He is one of those who considers God was mischievous in allowing the Scots to invent whisky and at Maine Road he wants the champagne to be oo the pitch.

But at the moment I do not really want to add to the club statement, but I might have something to say later." Don Megson became the latest manager to lose his job this week when he devided to quit at Eastoe's goal gave Leicester, still without a win this season, a 31st minute lead, but Louie Donowa equalised and Bertschin, playing his 100th match for Norwich, made it 100th match for Norwich, made it 2-1 on the hour. Channon added a penalty eight minutes from time. Newcastle went second in division two by beating Cardiff 2-0 with goals from Keegan and Beardsley, while third division leaders Oxford United, put up for sale earlier in the day by chairman Robert Maxwell, beat Bradford 2-0, with goals from Hebberd.

Two of Britain's athletics govern-ing bodies have voted £125,000 of their profits toward improving the country's lamentable indoor ath-letics facilities. If the London docklands scheme to convert a huge warehouse into a antional indoor areaa pors ahead, the Amateur Athletic Association will contribute £100,000, and the Southern Counties AAA £25,000 towards the istrative cons.

The docklands achieme is one of The dockiands scheme is one of several city centre projects, includ-ing Birmngham, Doncaster, Swan-sea and Slough for indoor arenas. For, despite the talents of such athletes as Steve Cram, Daley Thompson, Sebastian Coe, and Steve Overt, plus the road running boom — which has brought hundres of thousands of pounds in sponsorship into athendor facilities years - the lack of indoor facilities necessary to maintain the sport's impetus has made Britain a poor relation.

There are almost a hundred indoor arenas and tracks throughout Europe, and twice that number in the United States, but Britain's athletes still have to make do with one 200 metre track in an RAF banger at Cosford, on the Stafford-shire/Shropshire border.

The decision by the committee of the AAA and the Southern Counces. the ACA and the Southern Counces AAA to plough back some of the money that they have carned from their, athletes' endeavours is a positive step towards improving that situation.

The AAA and its southern area The AAA and ns southern area member, however, should out have holes in their bank statements for very long if their offer is taken up. The AAA has arranged two England matches, against Poland and the United States ar Cosford in March, Unred States ar Costord in March, The dates have to be rubber-stamped by the European Athletic Association at their calendar conference in Madrid next week, conference in Machine next week, and then there are two sponsors waiting in the wings with around £50,000 for the meetings which are due on March 7 and March 10.

In last year's corresponding match with the United States, extra seats had to be brought in for a crowd of 4,000, and the home-athletes responded to the great support by winning by one point, and Seb Coe contributed 3 new adoor world best in the 800 m

New stud rule to prevent injuries

Rugby anthorities are aiming to reduce infuries with new rules governing boot studs. A new British standard for replaceable (screw-in) studs will be published on Monday, October 31 by the Rugby Football Unioz. The Shoe and Allied Trades Research Association, who have been working on the problem since 1975, have at last devised a test procedure for studs that should dramatically decrease the number natically decrease the number

I will not go into the technicalities, as I do not understand a word of it, hut take it from me, Prean uses a table tennis bat covered (one side) with long pimpled rubber and, what is more, he uses it in a funny way. He counter-hits with it. It is a ruhber designed for defenders and that is why his bad bought a sheet of it to aid his own defensive ame. "I couldn't get on with the stuff at all, couldn't keep the ball on the table," John Prean said. Carl added: "The long pimples just suited me straightaway." And quick as a flash his Dad put in: "He'd be good with anything, though." Mr Prean introdoced his lad to the game

He is one of those naturally gawky people, who look totally uncoordinated. He has been shooting np like a Californian Redwood in recent months, six inches in the last year, "and I had to turn his track-suit tronsers down one-anda-half inches last week. It fitted him in May," said his mother. He is naturally all arms and kess, when he plays his arms fail like a windmill and his legs churn like a egg-beater. Still photographs capture him in all kinds of improbable positions, bat under armpit and knee under ear-hole. "It's just how I play," he said.

He is a nice lad, incidentally, and a sports enthusiast with a freakish memory for facts and statistics. He can even remember evey football club Frank Worthington has played for. He does not come over as someone who is no more than his father's creature; he is in the middle of quietly becoming his own man: amiable, perhaps a trifle eccentric, and hiessed with the natural confidence that seems to come from winning things.

He has made the inevitable decision to turn full time player and will probably leave school after O level resits in January. He knows that with more time for practice his already finely honed game can only improve and he has his sights levelled at the European champiooships in Moscow April. "I've got a little chance, s very little chance of winning it." He is 12th in Europe and 25th in the world, "quick and

Team talk: Hiroshi Hibino coaching three of his squad

From Jim Jones Cardiff

Surrounded by several tons of fish-fed muscle Mr Hiroshi Hibino was anything but inscrutable. He even revealed the secret of his water-filled buckets. For as he spoke the great shadow of Cardiff Arms Park reminded him of his pursuit of the impossible

Mr Hibino is coach to the Japanese rugby team currently touring Wales. His dream is that his side should achieve immortality by defeating what be perceives to be the best rugby nation in the world.

"You have your ups and downs but we knew when you came to Japan in 1975 we were looking at magic. Because you were so great the crowd stood up and cheered you like

It was on that tour when Wales won by 82 points to six, a memory that hannts Japan so much that ony altimate victory over the Welsh will erase it.

over the Welsh will erase it. With an excusable arrogence the Welsh have not trained specially for the international match against Japan today and their players will not even be capped for the occasion. In short, what is regarded by the Japanese as a winter ascent of the Eiger is being treated by the Welsh as a practice match. Yet Mr Hibino's assault on Welsh rupby is every bit as Welsh rugby is every bit as professional as the strategems that have put Japanese com-panies at the forefront of world chnology

Apart from the fact that none of the 26-man squad wears spectacles, the most astonishing thing about the Japanese rugby team is the size of the players. Ten years ago they had the skill but were pushed aside like leaves in an autumn gale before the intimidating and massive bulk of the mighty Pontypool front row.

Now they look like fit Sumo wrestlers and no less threaten-ing. The average weight of 200 lbs is scarcely less than the Weightigen they hope to taken.

Rugby has been played in Japan for 84 years, ever since it was introduced by a Mr Clarke who left Cambridge to teach English at Keio University, Tokyo.

Mr Hibino said: "Although e have more than 3,000 teams
